Detail of painting on silk, 2017

Ljerka Njerš is one of the most versatile and internationally acclaimed Croatian artists. Trained in fine and applied arts, she is primarily known as a ceramicist who found her inspiration in traditional and modern techniques adapting them to suit her rich imagination and fine sensitivity. She is not unknown to the London public, but this time she comes to London to reveal how she is successfully at ease with a new medium. You will be able to meet the artist and see how her dynamic, but light brush stroke imaginatively flows on a sensuous surface of pure silk.
